

VOLUNTEER ACCIDENT INSURANCE

THE CASE FOR COVERAGE

Volunteers dedicate their time to meaningful causes in their communities and are the driving force behind many organizations. Whether they help to build homes, rescue animals, or mentor children, volunteers face inherent risks that may lead to accidental injuries and may pose a potential liability exposure, especially if they are under/uninsured.

Unlike employees, volunteers are rarely covered by workers' comp policies, and while many organizations rely on general liability coverage to support volunteers after an injury, it may not take effect unless an organization is legally liable.

Volunteer Accident Insurance may help to fill gaps in general liability coverage by covering accidents under a separate policy, regardless of policyholder negligence. By helping to pay medical costs and out-of-pocket expenses including coinsurance, deductibles and prescriptions, Accident Insurance may offer a cost-effective way of providing valuable financial support to volunteers after a covered injury.

HOW WE MEET YOUR NEEDS

Activity-specific coverage ensures that groups and their volunteers only pay for Accident Insurance that covers them when they are involved in a sponsored activity.

Coverage flexibility through Accident Medical Expense benefits that are available on either an excess or primary basis.

Accident Insurance pays claims regardless of who was responsible for the accident.

May help to reduce overall out of pocket expenses not paid by primary health insurance plans and may help to minimize the impact of high deductibles.

General liability coverage is enhanced with a standalone accident policy that may help to lower the frequency of general liability claims and/or lawsuits, potentially reducing premiums for the organization.
